Workshop “Corrosion in the Chemical Process Industry”

chaired by Helena Alves

The chemical process industry faces specific corrosion challenges and contains a wide variety of corrosive environments. It can be considered by certain aspects as a mature industry, but they are constantly changing, and the corrosion management has to integrate these evolutions in order to keep high levels of reliability management to fulfil the world demand. Some of the corrosion issues are the selection and development of corrosion resistant materials, coatings and environmentally friendly inhibitors.